Mr. Woodward moved that the reable gatherings ever witnessed in this city.

The occasion was the tin wedding of Major and Mrs. Coe, nee Miss Sarah Travers, whose popularity was amply attested by the large outpouving of guests to congratulate them upon having reached the tenth anniversary of their marriage. The house was brilliantly illuminated and hand somely decorated for the occasion. Under a large tin bell, a gift from friends in Charlestown, W. Va., beautifully adorned with flowers, Major and Mrs. Coe, assisted by Mr. Charles Coe and bride and Miss Travers, received the guests.

The gifts were numerous and novel, each donor endeavoring to present a souvenir of the event which might not find a duplicate. It would be difficult indeed to imagine an article in the way of tinware that was not given. The majority of the guests were in full evening dress. Refreshments were served during the evening but the Misses Williams Misses Meade by the Misses Hilleary, Misses Meade

City Amusements.

The opera house will be opened to-night, after having been closed for several days, with Mizener's Old-Time Minstrels. The program will include songs and dances and humorous sketches, illustrating the droll things about "darkey" life on the plantation and elsewhere. The company was formerly known as the "Big Four." It will, no doubt, be greeted with a good house.

Tomorrow night "Passion's Slave" will be presented, which, in turn, will be followed by Myra Goodwin in "Sis"
